TOP NOTES

Ukko-Pekka Luukkonen made his fifth straight start to begin the month of November, stopping nine of the 12 shots he faced. The reigning AHL Player of the Week has allowed two goals or less in three of his last five starts, posting a 2.02 goals-against average and a .933 save percentage over that span.

With a goal tonight, Ethan Prow has six points (1+5) over his last eight games, including a goal and three assists in his last five appearances.

Brett Murray, who was reassigned to Rochester earlier this morning from the Buffalo Sabres, scored for the third time in four games with all three goals coming in the month of November.

Two of his three goals this season have come on the power-play, which is one shy of the team lead.

Oskari Laaksonen has recorded seven points (1+6) over his last nine games after picking up an assist on Murray's second-period goal. He's now tied for ninth in assists and 10th in points among all AHL defensemen, respectively.

Rochester held Utica to only two shots in the third period and 12 for the game, marking the fewest by an opponent in both situations this season.

Utica's win tonight, their 11th straight to open the 2021-22 campaign, tied the AHL record for most wins to start a season. The only other team in the 85-year history of the AHL to open the season with 11 straight wins was the 1984-85 Amerks.
